Written for the Advertiser. Spring's Coming.

In the joy chains of winter, Earth is lying, oh how drear! But the spring is swift advancing, It will reach us, never far. Tho' March winds do shriek and whistle And March skies are bleak and gray, Hasten with me to the brook-side. "What does that willow say?" "Hark! 'tis she whispers, 'listen children, Don't you hear the brook's first thrill, As the ice king slowly loosens his will?" "Hark! I hear the first croak calling Surely Spring is on its way. Soon we'll hear the blue bird's warble, Then how gladly will we say, Not that, 'Now the spring is coming.' "No indeed, my children dear, We will say with hearts rejoicing, "Spring-time now is surely here." G. E. D.

Are Patent Medicines Frauds?

We are often asked the question, and our answer has invariably been that no medicine that gives satisfactory results could be fraudulent. We cannot afford to sell fraudulent medicines. Our business depends on pleased customers—in fact a business does. Therefore, we would take an enormous risk if we did not fulfill every promise made to our customers. We are very careful of what we guarantee, and when we do guarantee an article we must know it pretty well what it contains and how it made. We have in mind the Rexall Muco-Tone, of which all line of remedies, particularly Rexall Muco-Tone, of which are selling large quantities at the time of the year. Muco-Tone one article that we can recommend over our counter and know it is a positive cure for intestinal catarrh or what is commonly called Catarrh. It is without doubt the best of all medicines any one who is suffering from run-down condition, can't feel constantly tired, or from the more pleasurable symptoms of Catarrh—such as stopping of the nose, coming head or bad cough.

It must be remembered that Catarrh is not confined to the nose and throat. It usually is there, but it leads more often to serious trouble, particularly wasting of tissues, as in the case of little Miss Dillon, of Albany. Here is a letter from her father:

"My little girl had Catarrh badly that the disease had been to eat into the cartilage of nose. Snuffs and instruments failed to do more than give temporary relief. I saw the advertisements of Rexall Muco-Tone but I could not believe that a thing taken in the stomach could cure the sore membranes of nose. However, I took advantage of your free trial offer and my girl began taking your remedy according to directions. I want to say right here that Muco-Tone is certainly the greatest medical discovery of the times, and thank you for the liberal offer that first induced me to give a trial. Muco-Tone has cured my daughter's Catarrh completely. The discharge has stopped altogether, and her breath is as sweet as can be. Again thanking you, MARY DILLON, 24 N. Swan Albany, N. Y."

We are selling a large trial of Muco-Tone for fifty cents on the famous Rexall guarantee of your money back if you are not satisfied. We promise that bottle will put flesh on your bones and bring new vitality to system.

THE Rexall STORE

All on a Winter's Day.

It was one of those mild, cloudless days in early March, when a breath of spring breathes everywhere—in the changing tint of swelling tree-buds as the quickened sap flows upward, in the momentary hush of wintry winds, or perchance the clear warble of an early blue-bird—a day when Winter and Spring clasp hands on neutral ground. Down the hard road, his moss-coated feet breaking the noontime stillness with a slight crunch, crunch, tramped a young man of perhaps twenty-two years. A pair of snow-shoes under one arm and a gun told his present purpose.

Five feet ten, his stalwart, well knitted figure in its usual gray sweater, swaying with free abandon to each strong, easy stride, his cap pushed back showing a handsome, manly face, browned with the hue of health—Dick Reynolds was a splendid type of the true man of the woods. Suddenly a peal of girlish laughter rang on the still air, and out from the edge of the woodland over the snowy field toward the highway sped two figures—a snow-shoe race apparently.

The foremost was a young girl in a trim dress of dark green, white, fitted well her slender form, the short, fur-trimmed skirt giving free play for her swiftly moving feet. A white tassel-cap set jauntily upon her tumbling curls. Little bursts of merriment told her keen enjoyment of the sport.

Just behind, yet failing to gain upon her despite his long legs, followed a youth in a bright red sweater, his hatless, dark hair rising wildly on the breeze.

As our hunter caught sight of the advancing snow-shoes he half halted, then strode rapidly on, while from the depths of his heavy moustache came something very like an oath.

"Jeannette," he muttered, "Jeannette and that top of school teacher!"

Disinclined to turn his head and watch the finish of this race, Dick marched straight on, with shoulders a trifle more square, on, and around the bend of the road.

The highway boundary was nearly reached when the girl with a little cry of vexation and a quick backward step sank on one knee in the soft snow. Her companion, unable to stay his speeded momentum, passed on, meeting the wall with extended arms, and nearly plunging headfirst to the other side.

Regaining his equilibrium and to some degree his lost dignity, the Professor DeQuincy Carewe, A. B., leaned against the wall breathless, wiping with a kerchief his heated brow. This was his first experience in the snow-shoe art and he was justly proud.

"I won!" he panted at last, "My wager, Miss Jeannette."

Slowly the girl rose to her feet. Her blue eyes flashing with anger glanced from the broken strap to the Professor's exultant, crimson face.

"Professor Carewe," she gasped, "it's not fair! I had no time to get this," and her little foot stamped the snow.

"Blessings on thee, Strap," murmured the Professor.

Through gold-rimmed spectacles his dark eyes beamed with pleased assurance.

"To-night," he said calmly, "I have the pleasure of your company to the spelling bee."

"As you still insist," she replied haughtily, and sprang lightly over the wall into the beaten road.

Ere the Professor, following awkwardly after, reached her side she had removed her remaining snow-wed and stood shaking off the clinging snow.

"Your hat, Professor!" she queried in a tone of deep concern, though her eyes twinkled merrily, and the Professor, his hands wildly seeking his unprotected head, suddenly remembered how an impudent branch had snatched it away from him.

They left the road, and he was re-embellished the wall and made his way back to the road.

"I'll wait for you at the spring," she called, and tucking her shoes under her arm Jeannette tripped down the road.

What a dreary world—theo' never did sun shine brighter or a landscape smile more fair than on this ideal winter day.

Vainly the little black-capped chickadee called from a nearby tree:

"Dick loves thee, thee, Dick loves thee, thee," Jeannette was blind and deaf to all.

If only Dick had one-half that Professor's audacious persistency!

Jeannette made tracks on the spring path showed someone had gone before, and as Jeannette drew near she espied a familiar form leaning dejectedly against an old pine.

Her heart gave one great throb. "Dick," she called softly.

Quickly the young hunter turned, his face aglow with glad surprise blue eyes and gray met in one long, long gaze.

"Jean," he cried, and into his open arms she flew like a bird, nestling close to his broad breast.

"Dick," she breathed again, "Dick!" and all was told.

When the weary, yet triumphant DeQuincy, having recovered his hat, reached the spring at last, he paused in amazement.

Unnoticed his snowshoes slipped from his grasp. Removing his spectacles he rubbed them carefully and looked again.

Jeannette was there, as she promised, waiting, why, he knew that young Reynolds holding the bark cup that she might drink? And, aw—ah—the Professor held his breath—yes, he—did—really—kiss her!

Without a word Professor DeQuincy Carewe, A. B., walked away. Back to his world of books he went never to stray again.

Comrades once more, comrades for life, our youth and maiden parted from the spring. Across the path a forlorn pair of snowshoes spoke with silent eloquence.

"Poor Professor!" sighed Jeannette. "Poor Professor!" echoed Dick.

It is strange that when you want Eggs the most the price is the highest or you cannot get them at all. It seems to be a rule of life that when something is most needed it is often hardest to obtain.

When you have toothache, neuralgia, nervous headache, or a cold on the lungs you want immediate relief, and the changes are that your bottle of Neuralgic Anodyne will be empty. Take this advice kindly, and see that you always have a full bottle of Neuralgic Anodyne in the house ready to use when there is toothache, neuralgic headache, neuralgia, coughs or rheumatic pains. It relieves suffering almost instantly and gives lasting relief. A large sized bottle costs but 25c., and is sold everywhere under guarantee to refund the money if not satisfactory. tent the contagious diseases that we would otherwise be afflicted with. Dr. Holton thoroughly understands this subject, is alive to the work and is an interesting, instructive speaker. He talked until dinner time, when the meeting adjourned until 1:30.

Dinner was served to a large number of farmers and their friends, after which Dr. Holton resumed his address, dealing on various subjects of the subject such as heating, sick sewerage, outbuildings, necessity of keeping cellar clean, etc.

After this address, Mr. Gilman introduced E. D. Howe of Marlboro, Mass., past master of Massachusetts State Grange, who is a milkman and does a large business in this line. He took up the different features of the work, dwelt on the great necessity of cleanliness in the tie-up, milk room and care of utensils. Explained methods as carried out on the large milk farms of his State.

Dr. Holton again addressed the people on Tuberculosis as regards both human and bovine and vice versa. He stated that it is not necessary that persons thus afflicted must die from it but by proper treatment, very important of which is fresh air and proper sanitary conditions, can overcome the disease. He is a man of much experience in this line and illustrated his talk by several instances which had come to his observation.

The addresses were interspersed by music by Annie Whitehouse, singing by the Grange choir, solo by O. P. Brooks and music by Lizzie Ross. A. E. Morse of South Paris was also present, and gave several readings, which were heartily enjoyed.

Dr. Holton had received a telegram from home which called him there by the next train, and he will be unable to attend the rest of the institutes as had been planned.

The meeting was thoroughly enjoyed and should prove highly beneficial to all who attended.

There was a pleasing program of songs by Annie and Gertrude York, Rhoda and Orla Millett, and instrumental music by Hersey Saunders. Excellent recitations were given by Mary Manning and Mary Dresser. An original poem was read by Mrs. Ellen Millett. After these exercises a bountiful supper, which the Rebekahs knew so well how to prepare, was served in the lower hall. One hundred and twenty were present and many were prevented from attending on account of the bad weather.

Supreme Judicial Court.

The time of the court Thursday was occupied by the defense in the Robbins case. Irwin W. Robbins was the principal witness. Stated that he was 48 years old and had been poor heart trouble. On February 7th of the present year, in the forenoon, had seen land. Notices had been put up forbidding anyone to trespass on the land. On afternoon of same day he and his son had started after a saw which had been stopping at a party who had been near Washburn pond. Took a revolver which he had while acting as game warden. His son took axe and shovel. Didn't have any idea of meeting Mr. Pratt. Advised Pratt to turn around at a convenient place and go back. He paid no attention to what I said, and drove on over the sign. Oliver asked him not to drive under tree as it might fall on him. He said nothing. Stepped back into road, and Pratt stepped off from sled and came towards him, saying he would brain him. Then kicked him and struck at him. Warded off the blow, stepping back all the time. As he struck the second time I pulled revolver. He was exhausted after the head with volvier exploded three times but still at him. Told Pratt he would let him up if he would behave. Said he would, and on get up. Offered to help him get into bed. He could get them with-out help. Oliver had not laid a hand on Pratt.

The cross examination of Mr. Robbins failed to elicit anything to seriously contradict his previous testimony.

Oliver A. Robbins testified that he was 16 years old. Was outting fire down for purpose of falling it across road. He did not have the shovel at all. Knew when we started out that Pratt was not in the woods. Tree was nearly cut down when Mr. Pratt appeared. Pratt said to father that if he didn't get out of the way he would run over him. Heard Pratt say, "I'll brain you," as he got off on the sled. Father said, "Keep back for I don't want any trouble with you."

He made an excellent witness and the cross-examination failed to shake his testimony.

Several other witnesses testified to other minor matters. The pleas and charge of the court were reported. The greater part of the jury took up on Saturday afternoon. The jury retired about 6 o'clock, and after being out until 12 at night sealed up their verdict.

The coming in of court Saturday morning the jury reported the agreement as to Irwin W. Robbins and verdict of acquittal as to Oliver A. Robbins. It is said that the jury stood 7-5 to a verdict of an assault and battery but not to kill and murder Mr. Pratt, the minority even refusing to agree to an assault and stand first to last for acquittal.

The jury Ed. H. Peters and Peter Morrill of Rumford Falls were given to the jury Ed. H. Peters of Rumford Falls was put on trial before the jury, for single sale of intoxicating liquors to one Ed. Wiggitt. Joseph Cameron testified to going into the Siddall block and buying some whiskey of a man there other than the defendant. Did not know who the man was. Was treated by Wiggitt after which he bought two glasses of the beverage and ate a sandwich and drank himself. The case was a short one and the jury was out but a short time and returned a verdict of not guilty.

Saturday Ed. H. Peters and Peter Morrill of Rumford Falls were given to the jury Ed. H. Peters of Rumford Falls was put on trial before the jury, for single sale of intoxicating liquors to one Ed. Wiggitt. Joseph Cameron testified to going into the Siddall block and buying some whiskey of a man there other than the defendant. Did not know who the man was. Was treated by Wiggitt after which he bought two glasses of the beverage and ate a sandwich and drank himself. The case was a short one and the jury was out but a short time and returned a verdict of not guilty.

The defense claimed that they sold only one beer. Monday a verdict of guilty was brought in and the case was sentenced to four months in Auburn work jail.

Tuesday the civil case of L. S. Hazelton against C. C. Davis was tried. This was a case which was tried at the Oxford Municipal Court and decided in favor of Hazelton. Davis appealed. It is a disagreement on wages. The jury disagreed, it being understood that they stood 11-1 for plaintiff.

Joseph Metevier was tried on charge of being proprietor of beer shop at Rumford Falls. Allen, Taylor and Bisbee, formerly Sturges enforcement officers, were the chief witnesses. Defense is that he was only clerking there. He was found guilty and was sentenced to four months in Auburn work jail.

In the Siddall case there was a peculiar instance where the jury found him guilty of selling to Cameron and not to Wiggitt. It appeared from the testimony that both men were at the saloon at the same time and treated back and forth. He was sentenced to $50 and costs of about $31, and 30 days in jail.

A motion of "Law" was filed to overrule the decision of court as he could not retract what he had said.

The following additional divorces were decreed:

Carroll D. Fogg from Emma A. Fogg, both of Peru, for adultery.

Dyer. Walter S. Sessions of Milton Plantation from Mary A. Sessions of Rumford, for cruel and abusive treatment.

Swasey. Foster & Foster. J. Henry Smith of Rumford from Nettie Smith, formerly of Bridgewater, Nova Scotia, now of parts unknown, for utter desertion.

FOR STOMACH SUFFERERS.

Don't Use Any Remedy That Keeps Its Formula a Secret.

People troubled with stomach weakness cannot afford to use a medicine unless they know what it contains. Mifona is the one remedy for stomach troubles that publishes its formula: chemically pure bismuth subgallate, to allay any inflammation of the stomach and bowels; cerium oxalate, to strengthen the stomach nerves; sodium bicarbonate, to neutralize the poisonous acids that are present in stomach troubles; and an emulsion, which restores vigor to the digestive organs and tones up the whole nervous system.

This combination of valuable remedies is found only in Mifona stomach tablets, and it so rarely fails to strengthen the worst form of stomach trouble, that the remedy under guarantee to refund the money unless it cures.

A 50c box of Mifona will give quick relief for indigestion, distress after eating, sleeplessness, or any of the other symptoms of stomach troubles. Unless it does this, the cost is nothing.

BETHEL.

Mrs. Francis Sanborn Kendall.
Died March 6, 1907, in Kendallville, Wisconsin, Mrs. Francis Sanborn Kendall, widow of the late Sargent Gilmore Kendall, of Kendallville, who was a native of Bethel.

She was the daughter of Stephen Sanborn of Greenwood, where she was born. For several years before her marriage she lived with her uncle, David Sanborn, of Bethel.

The cause of Mrs. Kendall's death was a fall on an icy place in the road on Feb. 27, on her knee, with such force as to fracture the hip joint in such a manner that she could not get up. She died on March 6th following, after a week's suffering.

After the accident, she was taken to her granddaughter's, Mrs. May Olin's, where the best of care from loving friends and relatives was bestowed. She died from the shock to her system, being about 83 years old.

She leaves four children to mourn the loss of a kind mother, Mrs. Lucetta Burton of Kendallville, Mrs. Marietta Eddy and Mrs. Viola Tinker of Cresco, Iowa, and a son, Ralph Walter Kendall of Kendallville. Besides many grandchildren and a few great-grandchildren.

She was buried from the M. E. church in Kendallville and was interred in the cemetery beside her husband and son, Clifford Kendall. Mrs. Kendall was a kind woman, beloved by all who knew her. She made friends where she lived by her many deeds of charity to the poor and needy, always ready to assist in sickness and distress of others.

S. G. Kendall founded Kendallville, built a large house, then a stone floor, mill, investing his money in perfecting his mill. Hope it had paid back much of its cost. Mr. Kendall died and the property went into other hands.

For many years Mrs. Kendall has made her home in Cresco, Iowa, with her daughter, Mrs. Viola Tinker, and visiting her children, who all live in and near Kendallville.
